2020 & Looking Ahead

Q&A

It has been a challenging year for the steel industry.

- Steel industry faces challenges, as contributed by the escalating US-China trade war, overcapacity of steel mills, impacting steel prices.
- Political instability causes major infrastructure projects to halt.
- Competition is high and demands are lowered – margins are pressured
- High foreign currency exchange rate fluctuation causes high importation cost
- Sharp slowdown in economic activities since March due to Covid-19, MCO and RMC0

Macroeconomic weakness has brought heavy fluctuations in steel price and forex

- Difference between high and low point of USD-MYR as high as 9.5%.
- High forex implies high cost of import.
- Asian mills have lowered steel prices to push export sales due to overcapacity & Covid-19
- Decrease in steel prices implies lowered revenue and margins despite higher sales volume.

Other Countries	7,385 (1%)	39,446 (5%)	434%
Total	599,347	768,212	28%

The results justifies the Group's Corporate Development exercises.

- Part of the Group's business strategy to enter the regional market.
- Singapore is an important distribution point in the global supply chain. With the proximity advantage and operational synergies, the acquisition of Steelaris will strengthen AYS's position as a steel distributor and service provider and reinforce AYS's footprint in APAC region.
- The Group saw an increase in its customer base, export businesses and also the demand for value added services. Export sales stands at 35% of total revenue during FY2020.
- Steelaris has contributed RM181.473 mil in revenue and RM2.863 mil in profits from date of acquisition
